ECOSYSTEM

A blockchain ecosystem is a group of various technological elements capable of interacting to create a system that performs a specified function. This system encompasses multiple governing structures like individual participation, data ownership, funding, exit and entrance criteria, and information shared with the system's participants.

The blockchain ecosystem can provide true decentralization, immutability, transparency, accountability, and flexibility to day-to-day operations.

These advantages can be a boon for technology startups and projects as it creates an interconnected network, even if they must consider what information they want to share within the network.

ROBOTIC SYSTEM

Investors in many cases cannot react quickly enough to changes in price to achieve the optimal trades that are theoretically available to them. Slowdowns in exchanges and transaction times further exacerbate this problem. Second, investors can simply not dedicate as much time to the cryptocurrency markets as necessary to always achieve the best trades. Doing so would require round-the-clock monitoring of cryptocurrency exchanges all over the globe.

Fortunately for many investors, there are solutions to these issues. One of the primary solutions is a Robotics System, or automated tools that conduct trades and execute transactions on the behalf of human investors. Certainly, Robotics systems are a controversial component of the market, and there are justifications for using them just as there are reasons for doing away with them entirely.

WHY DECENTRALIZATION

Decentralization is not a new concept. When building a technology solution, three primary network architectures are typically considered: centralized, distributed, and decentralized. While blockchain technologies often make use of decentralized networks, a blockchain application itself cannot be categorized simply as being decentralized or not. Rather, decentralization is a sliding scale and should be applied to all aspects of a blockchain application. By decentralizing the management of and access to resources in an application, greater and fairer service can be achieved. Decentralization typically has some tradeoffs such as lower transaction throughput, but ideally, the tradeoffs are worth the improved stability and service levels they produce.

WHAT IS BINANCE COIN

Binance Coin (BNB) is a cryptocurrency that can be used to trade and pay fees on the Binance cryptocurrency exchange. The Binance Exchange is the largest cryptocurrency exchange in the world as of January 2018, facilitating more than 1.4 million transactions per second.

Users of Binance Coin receive a discount in transaction fees on the Binance Exchange as an incentive. BNB can also be exchanged or traded for other cryptocurrencies, such as Bitcoin, Ethereum, Litecoin, etc.

Binance Coin was created in July 2017 and initially worked on the ethereum blockchain with the token ERC-20 before it became the native currency of Binance's own blockchain, the Binance Chain.

The image shows the Binance logo, which consists of a stylized diamond shape made of four smaller diamonds, with the word "BINANCE" written in white capital letters below it. The logo is set against a background of glowing orange and yellow lines and dots, resembling a circuit board or a digital network.

WHY BINANCE SMARTCHAIN

There are many promising networks, but not all of them are popular enough or well-developed. Binance smart chain was chosen because of several reasons:

- Excellent Bandwidth;
- Low Fees;
- well-developed infrastructure;
- growing popularity;
- an impeccable reputation.
